

Transportation and handling

Thank you for choosing Clear Design Display.

Your product is important to us. We have taken great care in manufacturing your product and need to point out a few things that need to be communicated to your staff, installation team and courier services.

Acrylic is a fantastic material with so many uses. Regardless of how a product is packed, if poor judgment is used in transporting and handling of your product, the chances of product damage is high i.e., during transportation, handling, and installation.

The following is important to prevent disappointment:

- Please sternly inform and communicate with your team and transport company that extra care and attention is needed during all points of handling.
- Do not drop, chuck/toss or kick a packaged product, as this will damage your product.
- Do not double stack.
- Extra care is needed during the handling process, including when unpacking your product.
- Ensure that you have insurance cover with your transport company in the event of unexpected circumstances.
- Cleaning your product, please request cleaning guide from Clear Design sales team.

Clear Design Display has a long-standing experience with our current contracted courier service, Star Express, who offer insurance cover, should this be required from time to time, and they are well acquainted of the transportation and handling of products from Clear Design Display.

Regards

Your Clear Design Display Team.
